Brand New Book  Print on Demand .On November 5, 2009 a gunman opened fire at the Soldier Readiness Center at Fort Hood, Texas. 13 people were killed and 43 others were wounded or injured. The initial response to the incident was prompt and effective. 2 minutes and 40 seconds after the initial 911 call, installation first responders arrived on the scene. One-and-a-half minutes later, the assailant was incapacitated. 2 ambulances and an incident command vehicle from the post hospital arrived on the scene 2 minutes and 50 seconds later. Leaders at Fort Hood had anticipated mass casualty events in their emergency response plans and exercises. Base personnel were prepared and trained to take appropriate and decisive action to secure the situation. The prompt and courageous acts of Soldiers, first responders, local law enforcement personnel, DoD civilians, and healthcare providers prevented greater loss. As so often happens in our military, lessons already learned have led to a well-developed plan to care for the victims and families involved. The tragedy, however, raised questions about the degree to which the entire Department of Defense is prepared for similar incidents in the future - especially multiple, simultaneous incidents. Following the shooting, Defense Secretary Robert Gates established the Department of Defense Independent Review Board Related to Fort Hood, and asked that we lead the effort. Secretary Gates directed us to report with recommendations to identify and address possible deficiencies in: -DoD programs, policies, processes, and procedures related to force protection and identifying DoD employees who could potentially pose credible threats to themselves or others; -The sufficiency of DoD s emergency response to mass casualty situations at DoD facilities and the response to care for victims and families in the...
