If, in the progress of my remarks, I shall have occasion to refer to unpalatable facts, I beg you to believe that I shall be impelled to do so in no wanton spirit, but by a strict regard to truth and justice. It is not an uncommon mistake to assume that the institution of slavery was the cause of the late war. Probably a majority of those, both North and South, who have not given the subject thoughtful consideration, entertain this opinion. But, in my judgment, it is a grave error, and one which demands refutation. The attention of the country is now anxiously addressed to the great duty of healing the wounds which have been inflicted on the body politic. To do so thoroughly and effectually they must be probed to the bottom, and the true seat and extent of the disease ascertained. In my opinion it would be quite as correct to affirm that the tax on tea was the cause of the war of 1776, as that slavery was the cause of the war of 1861. Both sprang from far wider and deeper causes. Both were the growth of many years, and the results of...
