Excerpt: . Ill THE CHALLENGE THE Racing Club, as the reader knows, is the smartest sporting club in London, and the Inner Temple of the popular game of Bridge. But to-night cards held no temptation for me; and I sat alone in the reading-room, chewing the cud of a humiliation that was quite novel to my experience. The incident of the Cardinal s wink and the unknown voice had already escaped my memory, and I was rapt in rankling memories of the unsatisfactory evening I had spent. To me, it was inconceivable that even the finest exponent of a wretched game like golf could oust an all-round sportsman like myself from the circle of interest at a dinner table. It was not so much that I had not been afforded an opportunity to talk, as that when I did I was listened to with a...
